Jan. 13th 1861. I wish to express in these lines my thanks and love to your graciousness. The last letter I received was dated late June of this year. Since then, there have been many letters of a similar kind, but I have not received any. I hope that in the near future you will have the opportunity to visit us, for your presence would be greatly appreciated.

The state of health of the Country has improved, and the political situation is now much more stable. The Union of the States has been restored, and the people are once again united. I trust that these changes will bring about a new era of peace and prosperity.

But let us not be too hasty in our expectations. It is a long and difficult road to be traveled. We must not forget the lessons of the past, and we must always be prepared to face any new challenges that may arise. Let us strive to live in harmony, respecting each other's differences and working together for the common good.

I remain, your devoted friend,
